DEDICATION

In a constantly changing community few people remain at Friends long enough to affect its character. Miss Sarah Longstreth has taught English at Friends School for twenty-two years. She has anchored the English Department and the school with her insight and experience, and is always among the first members to support new ideas. The Senior Class affectionately dedicated this Yearbook to her with genuine thanks.

It's getting worse every year.
The more I laugh (ha, ha, ha, ha,)
The more I fill with glee.

EPITAPH

It is marking day, a day of false resolutions.
 Will the news be good or bad?
 Disillusionment has come,
 But no insight, no understanding.
 I remember candles burning late at night,
 And I wonder if I'll make it
 Today is grey and gloomy,
 Strange and sad, singing the blues.

But I know I can make it,
 Somewhere far from news.
 I look for the sun to break the clouds,
 I look for breezes and free lands,
 Dreams and free thoughts.

About time friends got rid of

I love to listen to music with openness and without thoughts of images. Each sound was a color and each color was a warm feeling and my heart kept the tempo. I turn the lights down and the music up and I find joy in different places it takes me
